1. A Hungarian engineer battalion of about 500 men is quartered in barracks near Moson-Magyaróvár (Y 16). A sketch of the barracks is attached.
2. Northward on the Magyaróvár-Hegyeshalom road there is an ammunition depot in the former Sapper barracks. It is guarded by the engineer battalion. An elementary rifle range with three targets was built near the Sapper barracks in 1951 and is being used.
3. At the western exit of the village of Mosonszentjános (Y 05), south of the road towards Halbturm, Austria, is an air observation post in a concrete bunker, manned by three men. The post is connected by telephone with the Mosonszentjános post office.
4. There is a radio station with a 15-meter antenna about 1/2 km. from the collective farm Krisztina Major and 1 km. north on the way to Moson and Mosonszentjános. The station is in a wooden house. The permanent staff consists of non-commissioned officers, supervised by two or three civilian engineers who come from Budapest. The people suspect it is a radio interference (jamming) station.
5. Hungarian Army infantry and artillery units are located at Kiskunmajsa (N 90) in new barracks. There are tank assault troops in Eger (J 55).
6. Since the autumn of 1951, the Vadásztöltény factory (hunting rifle cartridge factory) at Magyaróvár has been steadily engaged in the manufacturing of infantry and machine pistol ammunition. The factory has underground store rooms.
